Why is it important?

How to identify your competitors?

It is very important to pick your competitors wisely, as it defines how you would identify the opportunities for your solution.

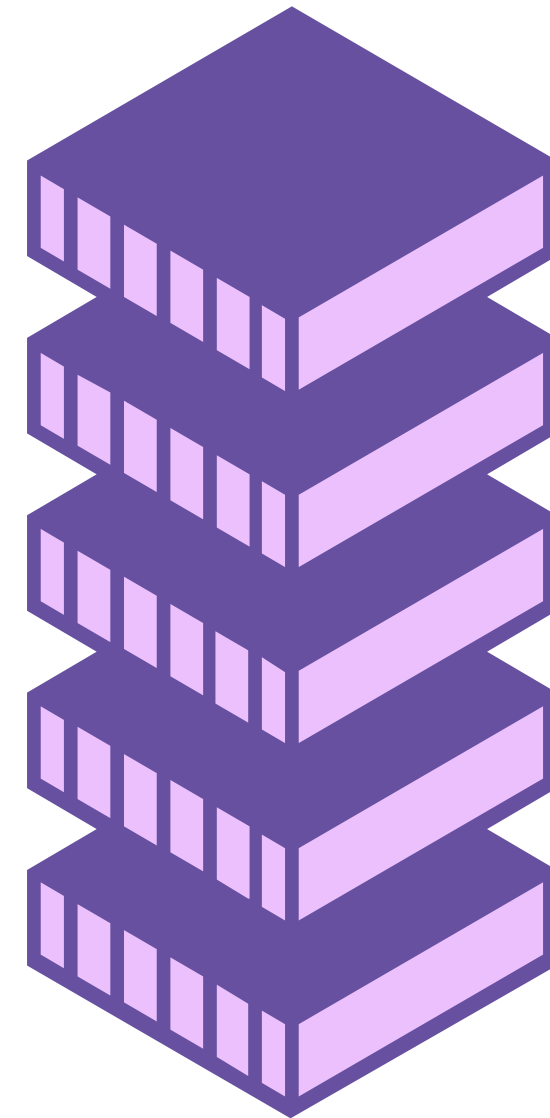

One useful strategy is to divide your competitors into "direct" and "indirect" competitors.

Direct competitors

Solutions that offer a service/product that provide a similar solution to your approach.

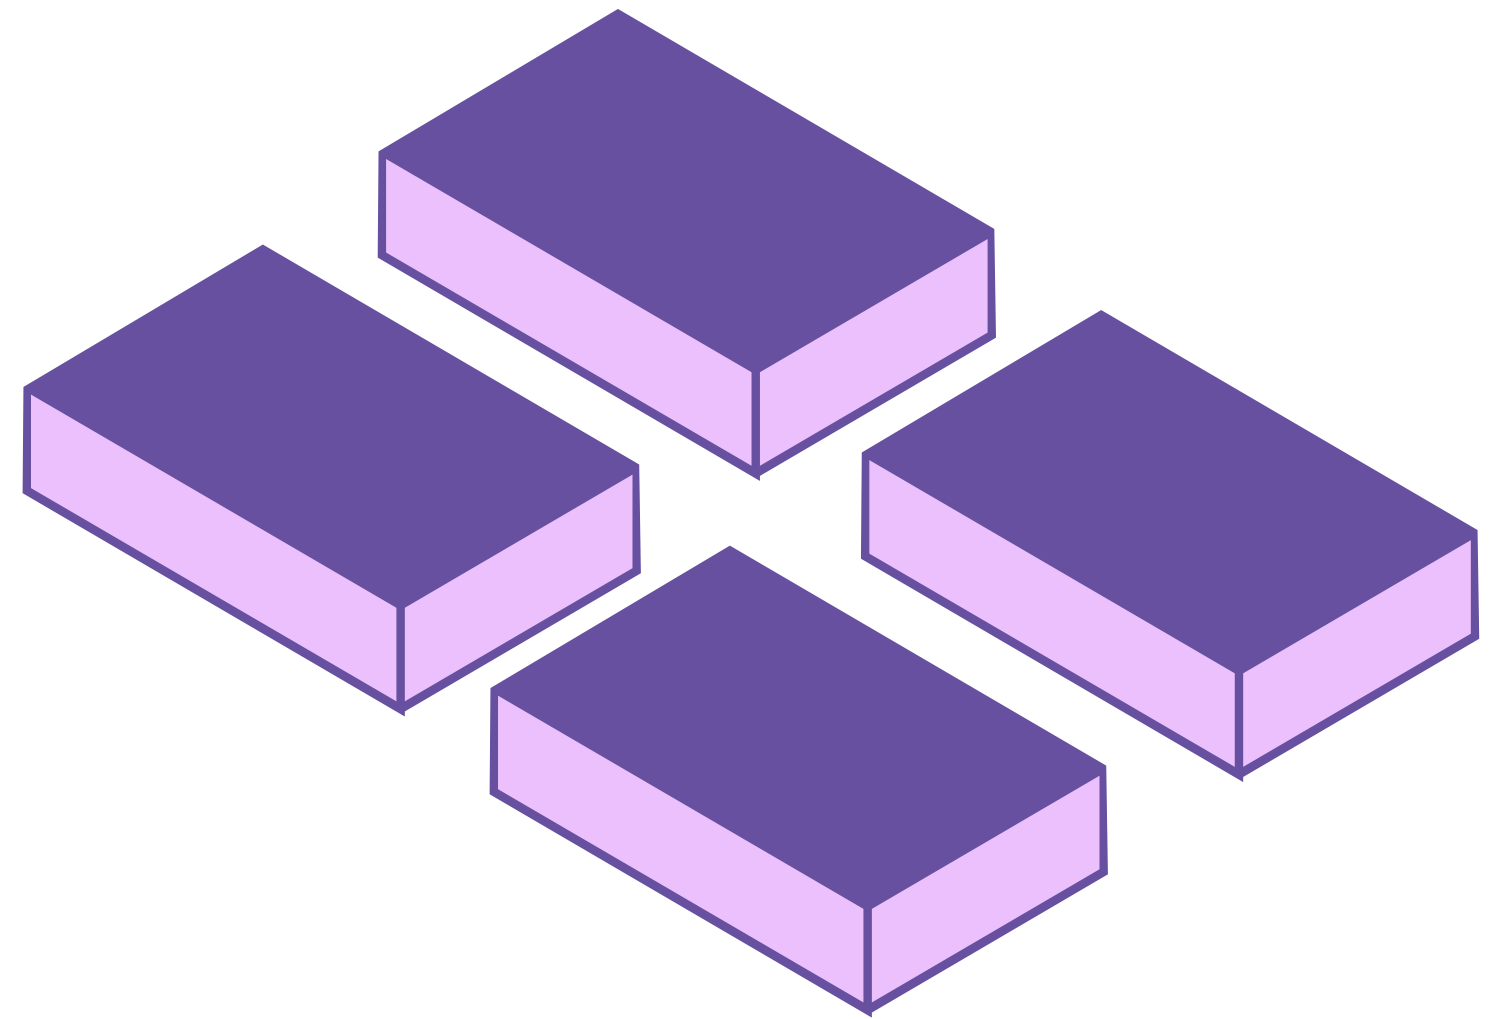

These help in exploring how your ideation is currently adopted and implemented in the industry.

Indirect Competitors

Services/products that differ in their approach, but cater to the same problem area/target solution that you plan to serve to.

These help in broadening the spectrum for your ideation.

Steps!

No hard and fast rule

1

Selection

Based on your domain select 3-5 competitors. You can add more as the study continues.

2

Analysis

Analyse their content, design, features, and functionality
Find out their flaws, and perks.

3

Aligning with your problem

Create a list of criteria that targets your problem

4

Inference

List down your learnings from every competitor

5

Result

Identify gaps and areas of opportunity

Examples

Competitor name:

NatGeo Historical Documentaries

Describe the product / service:

Its a set of TV/Web series that the user can view to learn about history of various things and places all around the world. Every documentary is factual, interesting and lasts for about 45 minutes

Content:

Content includes various destinations, their famous monuments and technologies and how they evolved.

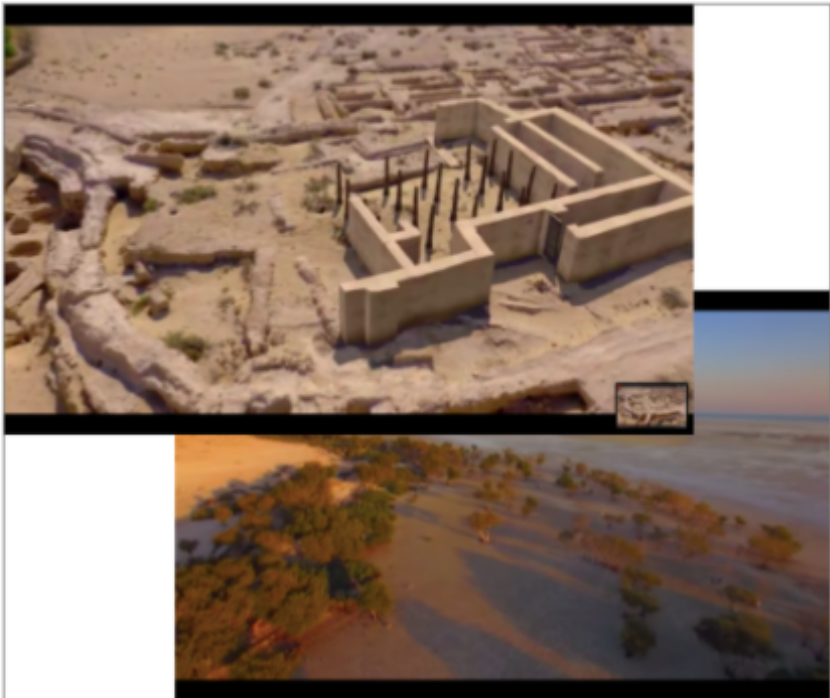

Key features:

- 1. Interesting narration
- 2. Evolution of monuments

Describe the brand:

Interesting, dynamic, colourful, fast paced

Image of the competitor:

Any other observations:

Even though this medium of learning is very interesting and certainly can build interest of the user in history of a region, it lacks interactivity and a chronological order in which the things evolved

Visual design - Video, Animation

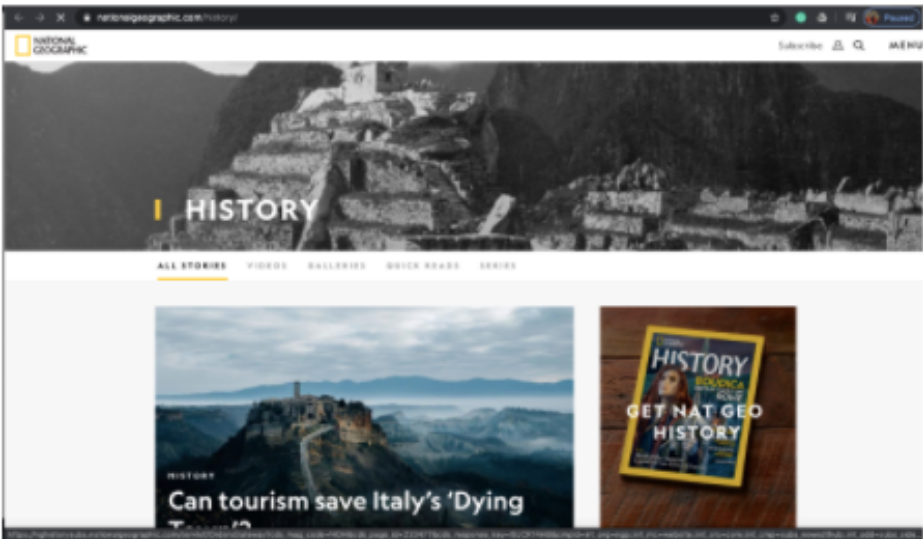

Content presentation - Content of the documentary is presented using interviews, animations, and pictures from the past
On the website, they have used cards. Clicking on any card loads the video for that card

Search - There is a search button if you click on it, a huge search section appears

Social media -Nat Geo is well-integrated with and active on various social media channels including a youtube channel, Instagram and Facebook page

Membership - You can subscribe to their feed

- Downsides-
- 1. History for all the regions are either not covered or not easy to find
 - 2. The videos are not interactive and can be very long
 - 3. The viewer cannot learn about the location of the country
 - 4. Events lack chronological order

SWOT analysis for a sustainable fashion service

Strengths

- Incorporating a large database of sustainable brands
- Allowing users to sell and give clothes out for renting
- Tracking least worn items in order to recommend them out for donation or to prompt the user to upcycle them

Opportunities

- Providing a discount feature based on your green score
- Allowing user to make customised outfits from items in the wardrobe
- Suggesting outfits for least worn clothes

Weaknesses

- Quality and hygiene of rented clothes
- Daily updates and reminders might get irritating for the user
- We do not have our own delivery service and have to rely on outsourcing delivery agencies.

Threats

- Competitors have stronger relationships with key partners
- Other non-sustainable applications might have more appealing options and offers
- Might be more time consuming and expensive than non-sustainable options
